TARGE

Our goal is to encourage critical thinkers, responsible global citizens and students in their subsequent education and throughout their careers.

Lifelong learning begins in the lower school. From the first moments of purposeful play and interaction in our floppy bunnies programme, through the integrated assessment tasks in the classroom. Our students are learning about themselves, each other and the world around them, our teachers work collaboratively to plan developmentally-appropriate, stimulating and positive learning experiences that help children to develop a deep understanding of important and relevant themes. Our academic programme supports children as they build a strong foundation in reading, writing, math and science. We also believe that learning should be an active process that allows children to take risks, grow in personal understanding, expand their knowledge and encourage children to express opinions, work collaboratively, tackle moral dilemmas and resolve conflicts. We believe in an inquiry-based approach to the process of learning that emphasizes and addressing, the inevitably broad range of developmental needs of children aged between two and ten. Our students engage in planned interdisciplinary and multicultural learning opportunities both in and out of the classroom.
